Open to Conviction.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CITIZEN:

SIR: I presume I voice the sentiments of quite a number who were present at the meeting last Saturday night when I say I came away disappointed. It is true that there were some unique features about the meeting, as for instance, the Chairman opening the meeting with an invocation, which, while perfectly proper, was somewhat novel, and hence directed thoughts in a new direction. To make a long story short, I came away just as wise as when I went. I supposed the pros and antis would lock horns in debate and we common, ordinary people might get some information. The young man who led off against annexation put up in a measure a good argument, which the learned attorney, with all his skill did not turn, and while he said he wanted to go into Newark because he wanted to, yet seemed to carefully avoid giving any real sound substantial reasons for annexation. He was amusing, but in no wise instructive. Before I vote for annexation I want somebody to give me substantial reasons for so doing, and please don't leave me to imagine "that there is a nigger concealed in the wood pile." Respectfully,

ANXIOUS INQUIRER.

THE TOWN'S FINANCIAL CONDITION.

Public Debt Being Annually Reduced—The Several Bond Issues and How They are Being Cared For.

Much talk of a sentimental character has been indulged in of late for and against annexation. The annexationists go so far as to inject sentiment into the financial side of the question by hinting at four per cent. tax rates and likely bankruptcy, and by portraying monumental financial obligations that will be thrust upon the town in the near future. The doleful imaginary financial condition pictured by the annexationists is merely sentimental, and the aim is to frighten people into voting for annexation. There is not the remotest possibility of a four per cent. tax rate this year or next year, or any year. Whatever future burdens may be imposed upon this town for track elevation or for sewerage outlet will be assessed upon taxable property in this territory, no matter whether it is in Newark or remains independent. As for track elevation, the Lackawanna Company may ask a certain sum, but the town officials can refuse to pay it, and track elevation may be postponed indefinitely. As for the Passaic Valley sewer cost, no taxable property within the sewer district will escape assessment, no matter what municipality it may be located in.

The prediction is made that the town is going to be financially ruined by purchase of the water plant. This alleged impending ruin could have been staved off at the special election by the same people who now pretend to be anxious to escape it by means of annexation.

The fact is there is no ground at all for the pessimistic forebodings about financial embarrassment and municipal bankruptcy. Some politicians are simply making up a case, and it appears as if they had shrewdly secured Mr. Garabrant to play upon the public with jeremiads.

There appears to be an air of comedy about the whole affair. The men who are staging the play could not have done it better even if they had actually arranged meetings between city officials and Mr. Garabrant, and had previously drilled the city men as to the kind of talk that would take well with the man from the suburbs. Mr. Garabrant's talk about the excellent work of the Newark Excise Board and the great reduction in the number of saloons in the city all evidenced that he has been joshed.

The best way to arrive at a satisfactory estimation of the town's financial condition is to study the financial statistics of the town. The following is a comparison of the town's bonded and floating indebtedness for the years 1900 to 1904 inclusive (thefiguare furnished by the Town Treasurer):

Comparison of Bonded and Floating Debt.

Chairmen of Council:	Mr. Stout. April 1, 1900.	Mr. Ward April 1, '01.	Mr. Ward. April 1, '02.	Mr. Peterson April 1, '03.	Mr. Peterson April 1, '04.
Union Outlet Sewer	35,000	32,500	30,000	27,500	25,000
Sewer 30-year Bonds	50,000	50,000	50,000	50,000	50,000
Street Improvements	75,000	75,000	75,000	75,000	75,000
School Bonds	158,000	155,000	152,000	147,000	141,000
Floating Debt	30,000	40,000	32,000	26,000	15,000
Board of Health			7,500	4,000
Total	348,000	352,500	346,500	329,500	306,000
Short Term Sewer Bonds Assessed on Property	54,000	40,000	32,000	28,000	24,000

The above table clearly shows a reduction of $72,000 in the bonded indebtedness between 1900 and 1904. This decrease has been progressive from year to year, and each succeeding year shows a greater improvement in the financial condition of the town as evidenced by the following table:

	Total indebtedness.	Decrease.
1900	$402,000
1901	392,500	$9,500
1902	378,500	14,000
1903	357,500	21,000
1904	330,000	27,500
Total decrease,		$72,000

The status of the several bond issues and the method of taking care of them is as follows:

The union outlet sewer bonds are paid off at the rate of $2,500 per annum. That payment is annually provided for in the tax levy. In ten years more, that issue of bonds will be paid off entirely. The original issue was $54,000; it has been reduced to $25,000, a gratifying showing and one that is highly creditable to the local government. There is no semblance of insolvency in that.

The next issue of bonds is that of $50,000 issued for the payment of the cost of such part of the lateral sewer system as was not directly assessed on the property benefitted. No bonds of this issue come due for twenty-six years yet, and upwards of a quarter of a century is a long way to look ahead for financial trouble.

Another issue of bonds amounting to $54,000 is known as the short term sewer bonds and represents an assessment upon property directly benefitted by the lateral sewers. The assessment is payable in ten annual installments and bonds are redeemed every six months. The issue has been reduced from $54,000 to $24,000, another striking evidence that municipal bankruptcy is not near at hand, and a strong rebuke to the pessimistic annexationists.

Another issue of bonds to the amount of $75,000 is one to which the people are indebted to Mr. Garabrant, the leader of the annexationists. This issue is known as the street improvement bonds. Those opposed to its issue at the time said that one of its faults was that it would eventually involve the town in a large expenditure for road repairs. Mr. Garabrant who was enthusiastic for the bonds brushed aside that objection and succeeded in carrying a meeting for the bonds. Now one of Mr. Garabrant's arguments for annexation is the alleged bad condition of the streets that were macadamized under his bond issue. Mr. Garabrant's inconsistencies in his various attitudes in public affairs are surprising to say the least. None of the street improvement bonds come due for fifteen years yet and they are hardly worth fretting about just at present. There is of course the interest charge but that was made light of by Mr. Garabrant when it was proposed to issue the bonds, and it is strange that it is such a burden on his mind now.

Another issue of bonds is the school bonds and this is another child born of those who are now wailing annexation. The opposition of Thomas Oakes and William A. Baldwin would have killed any proposed issue of school bonds. Instead of opposing bond issues Messrs. Oakes and Baldwin favored them, and the result was that the town now enumerates in its assets several fine school houses, and the people are loyally meeting the burden of indebtedness for schools and diligently reducing it at the rate of $5,000 per annum.

The floating indebtedness of the town in 1900 was $30,000; in 1904 it is $15,000. Nothing that savors of municipal bankruptcy in that, and if it had not been for a burden of $19,000 for expenses in caring for smallpox cases, which the town has met and paid off in addition to reducing the floating indebtedness, the entire floating debt would have been paid off.

During the administration of town affairs by George Peterson, the retiring chairman of the Town Council, the indebtedness of the town has been reduced $48,500. Mr. Peterson is a loyal Bloomfielder opposed to annexation, and full confidence in the ability of Bloomfielders to manage their own affairs. The town, he says, (and the figures prove his assertion) is in sound financial condition.

The town has a good asset against its floating indebtedness in the unpaid taxes outstanding. The condition of this asset is as follows:

1900	$ 4,872.89
1901	7,487.90
1902	10,158.61
1903	27,427.31

The above were the amounts due on March 1, 1904. For the year 1903 the amount due on real estate was $25,653.08; the rest was personal.
